

The Japonic Online Shop

OG-251 Nobleman with hunting falcon on his hand and quiver full of arrows on his back, Japanese antique wooden carved doll, 1850's (late Edo period)

Finely modeled wooden carved Japanese antique wooden carved doll of a Nobleman or high rank samurai dressed with hunting outfit with tachi sword attached to his belt and jingasa hat on his head.

The man holds a hunting falcon on his one hand and silk rope attached to falcon's leg in his other hand. His silk haori jacket hand painted with pine tree and cherry blossom motif and with traditional design. His inky-violet kimono is tucked into bakama pants with cherry blossom motif and dark-red lacquered round hat which is a symbol of high social status covers his head. His feet are shod in braided sandals - waraji. And a Nobleman has quiver full of arrows on his back. Highly collectible item of Japanese art!

Dimensions: 30,0 cm / 11,9 inches high

Condition: The doll is in very good condition according to its age with some shabby and little tear and wear clothes. However the doll has real antique taste of genuine art.

SOLD, THANK YOU!

Japanese glass-wooden box for storage and display can be provided for additional price by request

Order form

Your name:

Email:

Phone:

Address:

Back